

Responsive design and grid system

The wireframes are based on the Twitter Bootstrap gridsystem. Twitter bootstrap is a CSS framework that offers developers the possibility to create a fully responsive webdesign . The alignment of the wireframe grid and the recommended Bootstrap sizes will ensure a smoothly-flowing front-end development.

Idea: make it possible to select files from external sources like Picasa, Drive or Flickr?

Mobile HTML-interfaces can only upload one file at a time

1.3 Add meta-info page

Desktop

The desktop view of the EXPO meta-info page features a dark header with the EXPO logo, a search bar, and navigation links. Below the header, a status bar indicates '4 files uploaded'. A filter bar allows applying filters to all files, with options for 'Cultural heritage object', 'creator', 'location', and 'timespan'. The main area displays four file cards, each with a placeholder image, 'Enter title', 'Enter description', and a '+ More' button. A 'Submit files to Expo' button is centered below the cards. The footer contains links for 'About Expo', 'Who Are We?', 'Terms', 'Privacy', 'Policy & Safety', and 'Send feedback', along with logos for AcrossLimits and Europeana.

Tablet

The tablet view of the EXPO meta-info page is a scaled-down version of the desktop view. It includes the same header, status bar, filter bar, and file cards. The 'Submit files to Expo' button is prominently displayed in the center. The footer contains the same links and logos as the desktop view.

Phone

The phone view of the EXPO meta-info page is a vertical layout. It includes the same header, status bar, filter bar, and file cards. The 'Submit files to Expo' button is prominently displayed in the center. The footer contains the same links and logos as the desktop view.

Meta info can be assigned to all items at once or to individual items

It is desirable to process all info that can be extracted from the source files automatically (size, file type)

Advanced meta info is hidden but can be reached via the „+ more“ button.
